City, Townships Warned About Relief Burden

TOLD THEY'LL HAVE TO PAY THEIR SHARE

State Auditor's Aid Outlines Set-up, Says Funds Needed For Matching.

COVERS LAST HALF YEAR

County to Get $10,000 For First 2 Months, Only Half Total of January Bills.

The city of Mansfield and the townships in Richland county with the heaviest relief burdens will be asked to provide funds for matching state relief allocations during the last half of 1938. O. P. Van Schoik of the state auditor's office said last night at a conference at the courthouse with county, city and township officials.

Van Schoik outlined provisions of the new state-county relief set-up and warned that the county's sub-divisions will have to pay their share if they are to receive help from the state.

Provides for $50,000.

The county recently certified $18,600 to the state for matching funds during the first half of the year, providing about $50,000 for relief purposes in that period.

The county relief fund is exhausted, however, and commissioners said it is unlikely that more county money will be available for relief unless a levy is voted.

Van Schoik pointed out that the present relief plan provides for the auditing of county relief books every month by a state inspector.

First Aid Due This Week.

He said the first distribution of state funds under the recently enacted relief measure probably would be made this week. Richland county's share is expected to total about $10,000, covering allocation for both January and February.

That amount will pay only half of the county's bills for January which totaled nearly $20,000, and relief officials indicated that a part of the bills will have to be carried over until future allocations.

Build Dikes

800 Heave Sand Bags to Stem Michigan Flood Waters.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—(AP)—Eight hundred workers built sandbag dikes today along the river front of this city, Michigan's second largest, while the Grand river rose to flood level, bringing new threats of destruction to a state harassed by its worst floods in a quarter century.

The crest, reached last night at Ionia, was expected to strike here tomorrow or Thursday. Merchants emptied basements and scores of families moved to higher ground, while George H. Waring, WPA engineer, directed the job of building emergency barriers.

Cold weather checked the rise of a dozen rivers in other sections, but added to the sufferings of hundreds of persons who had been forced to flee their homes.

RAIN LETS UP IN CALIFORNIA

Sun May Even Shine There Today After 19 Stormy Days.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The sunless California, its northern and central portions battered by gales and flooded by 19 days of incessant rain, was promised nothing worse than cloudy weather today—and maybe some sunshine.

Twenty-four hours without precipitation would go far toward clearing up serious flood dangers in many valley sectors, weather officials said.

The danger spot appeared to be in the delta region of the San Joaquin river near Stockton, where 15,000 acres of rich agricultural land already has been inundated with a loss estimated at $100,000.

Rainfall eased off sharply yesterday.

DEATH STRIKES RED CROSS HEAD

Rear Admiral Grayson, Former White House Physician, Dies After Short Illness.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, 59, national chairman of the American Red Cross, died at his home today from severe anemia, superinduced by a cold he contracted on a recent trip to the south.

While he had been in poor health for the last two years he did not become ill until three weeks ago when a bronchial infection developed. The gravity of his condition did not become known generally until yesterday when President Roosevelt interrupted a motor drive to stop by his house to send in his card.

Grayson was widely known. He was the White House physician during the Woodrow Wilson administration and attended the former president during his last illness.

After retiring from the naval service, Grayson returned to his native Virginia to live the life of a country gentleman and the breeder of thoroughbred horses. He was named head of the Red Cross in 1935 following the death of John Barton Payne.

While the widow and two sons were at the bedside, another son, Cary T. Grayson, Jr., was rushing here from England. En route home from a museum of national history expedition in Africa, John Grayson was notified in London of his father's critical condition. The other sons at the bedside were Gordon, a student at Yale, and William, who attends school here.

HERDER FACES SLAYING CHARGE

Accused of Killing Sheriff and Wounding State Trooper.

HARRISONBURG, Va.—(INS)—Removed here from Woodstock to prevent public demonstrations, George Pingley, 45, a hill-billy shepherd, today awaited arraignment on a charge of fatally shooting Sheriff William Newcomer and wounding State Trooper George F. Miller.

He was accused of firing upon the officers when they appeared at his home to serve a warrant, charging him with sheepstealing.

Following the shooting Pingley fled to the hills. His dog took up his trail and started after him. A posse followed the dog.

Pupils' Dreams Come True In This System; 'Set' Own Grades

That dream of all schoolboys, to write their own grade cards, is realized in a new system which originated in Mansfield and is being examined with interest by educators of the country.

For the first time a boy can have his say about his "deportment"—only it's "citizenship" now—and if his teacher rates him pretty low, he can balance the score by putting himself right up there among the cherubs, with a "satisfactory plus."

The system was worked out by Miss Vivien V. Haynes, director of Country Day school and has been tried out on the grade cards of her students for the past two semesters.

While some parents were a little skeptical at first, it is now being received with enthusiasm by more than 50 per cent of them, according to Miss Haynes.

At the end of the first semester each student was presented with a new type of grade card, with two columns for appraisals; one for the student to sum up his own work and behavior, and the other for the teacher's grading of his work. Each card has a space for parents to make their comments.

A small per cent of the children over-estimated themselves on their studies; more of them were inclined to underestimate their citizenship (behavior) and work habits, while a few rated themselves higher in both academic work and behavior than their teachers did.

In all cases where teachers and students failed to agree, two were inclined to agree; two were not.

SCOUTS 'RUN' CITY, AND NOT BADLY, EITHER!

Horseplay Missing as Youths Show They Think It's All Business With Them.

REAL OFFICIALS DO KIDDING

Boy Mayor's Republican, Very Definitely, and He Has His Own Ideas About Job.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Boy Scouts took over the city administration today, and take it from me, the city could do a lot worse. Instead of the expected horseplay from a bunch of enthusiastic kids, city officials found themselves working with boys who think—and who in turn caused officials to scratch their heads on several points.

Of course there was a lot of fun, but strangely enough it was the officials themselves who did the kidding, because the boys were too interested and too serious to see the funny side of the situation.

Republican 'Liberal'

Ralph Arlin, 17, an Eagle Scout, was "elected" mayor in a Liberal landslide last week, but in an interview this morning, he unhesitatingly proclaimed a change in city administration because he's a Republican—at which point he turned a very firm chin in the direction of Democratic Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

"What would you do if you were mayor of Mansfield?" we asked "his honor," and he answered: "I'd have to be governed by the existing laws and ordinances, but I'd work and use my influence to build a new Y. M. C. A. building and two new swimming pools that would be owned by the city."

In repeating his answer, we inadvertently said "Y. W. C. A."

"His honor frowned," I said. "Y. M. C. A. I'm not interested in the Y. W. C. A." We didn't dare look at Mr. Hunter, but there was a giggle from that direction.

No Use For Parking Meters.

In answer to questions which now concern the city, Acting Mayor Arlin said that he did not favor parking meters "because they would just be a nuisance and wouldn't be fair to the fellow who couldn't afford to pay for parking."

JAPS THWARTED

U. S. Marines Block Them 2nd Time In Settlement Raid.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—United States Marines prevented two Japanese patrols from entering the American defense sector of the International Settlement today. The patrols sought entrance despite the refusal of the marines to admit a patrol yesterday.

It was reported that there was an angry argument this morning when the first of today's patrols, four men, sought to enter the American sector. The Japanese finally withdrew.

This afternoon an armed patrol of eight men returned, and vainly sought to enter.

Marine headquarters announced they were continuing negotiations with the Japanese regarding their efforts to send men into the American sector.

'DREAM HOME' WAITS M'INTYRE

Gallipolis In Mourning as It Prepares to Bury Its No. One Citizen.

(By Associated Press)

GALLIPOLIS—The old cronies and adopted home town folk of Gallipolis Number One Citizen made preparations today for the off-promised, off-written but long deferred coming of O. O. McIntyre to Gatewood, the "dream home" he never saw.

The famed columnist who was once known locally as "the best trick bicyclist in Gallia county" but who went to New York to achieve fame in another field, wrote often of Gatewood in connection with his retirement but did not know that death had other plans. Said he:

"Right there is where our home comes into the picture for it is to Gatewood we shall go, and perhaps with not so many regrets as one might expect of people so long geared to the city."

McIntyre died in his Park avenue apartment early Monday morning at the age of 53 without having seen the "dream home" he bought and remodeled as a birthday gift for his wife, the former Maybelle Hope Small of Gallipolis.

His body, accompanied by Mrs. McIntyre and some friends, will be brought from New York to Gallipolis Wednesday. The body will lie in state at Gatewood and all business houses will close to give every resident in this Ohio river city 7,000 persons an opportunity to pay tribute to a fellow-townsmen who retained his home ties only through his newspaper column and his correspondence.

Westinghouse Picked City Twenty Years Ago Today

Story Announcing Selection of Plant Said Firm Hoped to Hire 200; 4,000 on Payroll in 1937.

Twenty years ago today, on an inside page of the Mansfield News, buried behind the headlines of Vernon Castle's death and plans to end the war quickly, was this headline: "Large New Electrical Company to Open Mansfield Plant."

There followed a story to the effect that the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company of Pittsburgh, had purchased the old Baxter stove plant, a one-story building on East Fifth street, and that electric ranges and heating devices would be manufactured here.

Saw $1,000,000 Output.

The new company, the story said, hoped to employ as high as 200 men, with a possible annual output of $1,000,000.

And that was the first inkling that Mansfield had of a new industry to locate here. The story was published on Friday, Feb. 15, 1918.

Today Westinghouse is Mansfield's No. 1 industry, employing in normal times several thousand men and women. Last August when the employment peak was reached, more than 4,000 workers were listed on the rolls, and last year's payroll was close to $6,000,000. In the 20 years that Westinghouse has been in this city, the total payroll represents a staggering sum.

HEARS POPE PIUS AGAIN IN DANGER

London Dispatch Indicates Grave Alarm Felt For Pontiff.

LONDON—(INS)—Grave anxiety once again is felt for the health of Pope Pius, the London Daily Mail reported in a Rome dispatch today.

The report declared the aged pontiff moved with difficulty and pain and that extra guards were on duty at the gates of his apartment in the event of a crisis. Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, was reported in constant attendance upon the pope.

An Exchange telegraph dispatch from Vatican City, however, denied the pontiff had suffered a relapse.

City Health Board Approves Compulsory Immunization; Eight More Taken Ill.

The city health board today had added its approval to the recommendation of state health authorities for compulsory pre-school smallpox vaccination.

It took that action last night at its regular meeting, and even went a step farther. In addition to proposing pre-school immunization against smallpox, it also urged similar treatment to prevent diphtheria.

The first recommendation for pre-school smallpox vaccination was made Saturday by Dr. Finlay Van Orsdall, head of the communicable disease division of the state board of health, here to help combat the present outbreak of smallpox. He proposed that both city and county school boards make it mandatory, and those bodies agreed yesterday to consider the recommendation at their next meetings.

Meanwhile, eight new cases of smallpox were reported in the county in the 24-hour period ending at noon today. The number was double that for any similar period for the past 11 days.

U. S. Spending 14 Billions For Defenses, Costs Rising Daily

Editor's Note: The following is the second in a series of dispatches by Lyde S. Wilson, United Press Washington manager, on national defense issues.

By LYDE S. WILSON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—National defense costs actual or projected since the 1922 Washington arms conference aggregate $14,000,000,000—and the cost is going up today.

In the 16 years since naval powers first undertook naval limitation our national defense expenditure has risen from $569,347,000 in the fiscal year 1923 to the $1,000,000,000 budget estimate submitted by President Roosevelt to congress for the fiscal year 1933.

Well more than half our national defense spending will go for the navy in the next fiscal year. And to that approximately $700,000,000 Mr. Roosevelt on Jan. 28 added a new building program to cost $300,000,000 for construction of three battleships, two aircraft carriers, eight cruisers, nine destroyers, nine submarines and 40-odd auxiliary vessels.

Already building are two battleships, two aircraft carriers and 61 cruisers, destroyers, submarines and smaller vessels. In his regular budget in the first week of January Mr. Roosevelt asked funds to begin two battleships and 13 smaller vessels.

U.S. TREASURY SHIFT SEEN AS BUSINESS AID

Partial Abandonment Order on Sterilization Program to Free Millions.

CHECKS DEBT GROWTH

Capital Views Change as Plan to Stabilize Prices, Needed to End Slump.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Partial abandonment of the treasury's gold sterilization program, officials said today, in effect will increase total bank deposits and thus increase the amount of money which banks can lend to businessmen and others.

Whether this helps business will depend on whether the money is lent, which is a private affair. The lendable excess reserves of the nation's banks are $1,400,000,000, compared with the $500,000,000 which the federal reserve board thought a year ago was ample for business needs.

Halts Rising Debt.

Of more direct concern to the treasury, officials explained, the new policy will check the growth of the federal debt—now at the unprecedented total of $37,576,000,000—and reduce the government's interest costs.

Under the sterilization policy inaugurated Dec. 24, 1936, the treasury borrowed money to buy gold. This was designed to keep the credit supply stable.

Secretary Morgenthau announced last yesterday that hereafter the first $100,000,000 of gold which the treasury acquires each three months will not be sterilized. Instead, the metal will be used as a base for gold certificate currency which the treasury will spend through the federal reserve system.

Officials linked the new policy directly to the business recession, but for differing reasons. Some indicated a desire to put a mild inflationary prop under falling commodity prices, which some economists believe must be steadied before businessmen will start buying normal quantities of goods.

Original Purpose Gone.

Others said only that the original purpose of the sterilization program was gone. At the time it was started, prices were rising—too rapidly, the administration thought, and hence it acted to neutralize the inflationary effect of gold imports.

A total of $5,700,000,000 of foreign gold has come into this country since President Roosevelt devalued the dollar early in 1934. He fixed a price of $35 an ounce for gold, which has been the highest offered anywhere in the world.

Some foreigners sent gold here to get the benefit of the price; others to safeguard fortunes menaced by internal crises in their own countries.

SENATE OK'S BILL, SENDS IT TO PRESIDENT

15,000 Persons to Be Hired to Carry Out Provisions of Huge Crop Measure.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—Agriculture department officials, jubilant over congressional approval of the crop control bill, arranged today to begin the new half-billion-dollar program the minute President Roosevelt signs it.

More than 15,000 persons, they said, will have a part in carrying out provisions of the measure, which the senate passed late yesterday and sent to the White House.

These persons include more than 3,000 employees of the agricultural adjustment administration and the members of some 2,950 state and county committees.

Ohio Senators Oppose.
Two Republican senators—Capper of Kansas and Frazier of North Dakota—joined with 53 Democrats and Senator Norris (Ind.) in approving the measure.

The 31 votes against it came from 17 Democrats, 11 Republicans, two Farmer-Laborites and Senator LaFollette (Frog-Wis.) Senators Bulkley and Donahay, Ohio Democrats, voted against it.

"This is the best farm bill that has been enacted by the congress to deal with a great problem of American life," said Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky.

Republican Leader McNary, on the other hand, commented: "This bill does only one new thing for farmers. It puts new restrictions upon them and blankets them with compulsion. It will make every farmer a vassal of the secretary of agriculture."

The measure, written by a senate-house committee from separate bills passed in December by the two chambers, establishes a system under which the agriculture secretary, working with farmer committees, may prescribe limitations on the quantity of wheat, corn, cotton, rice, and tobacco grown or marketed.

In general, it involves adjustment of production according to estimates of supply and demand. When supplies are deemed too high, two-thirds of the farmers voting in a referendum can impose marketing restrictions on all farmers. Penalties are provided for non-observance.

The final bill modified a provision inserted by dairy and livestock blocs to protect their constituents against new competition. Agricultural department officials said that despite the change, widespread growth of competition was unlikely.

CRAWFORD G.O.P. BACKS BRICKER

Endorses Former Attorney General For Governor as He Hits 'Contributions.'

(By Staff Correspondent)
BUCYRUS.—John W. Bricker, Columbus, former Republican attorney general, continued his attack on the present state Democratic administration here last night, repeating his charges that private concerns have to pay for the privilege of doing business with the state.

Bricker, who is expected to announce his candidacy for governor shortly, received the endorsement of the Crawford county executive and central committees for the nomination at a rally last night at which he was the principal speaker.

"If you wish to do business with the state," Bricker said, "instead of going to the department with which you wish to transact the business, you have to go to Francis Poulson, Democratic state chairman."

Bricker cited a recent case uncovered by the senate investigating committee concerning the purchasing of coal for the state from two Athens county women. It was testified during the investigation that the women had to pay 30 cents a ton for the privilege of selling coal to the state.

According to the senate committee's findings, Bricker related, the women went to Columbus to protest to Governor Martin L. Davey, but were sent to Charles Leasure of the social security board, a former secretary to Governor Davey. Leasure told them they wouldn't have to pay the fee any longer, but when the women arrived back in Athens they found their coal contracts had been cancelled, Bricker said.

Bricker spoke before 225 Republican adherents at a dinner-dance held at the Greenlawn, east of here.

ASSERTS PEACE ASSURED IF U. S., ENGLAND WILL STAND TOGETHER

If the English speaking people of the world want to establish and maintain peace above all else, they must be willing to sacrifice profits," Alfred Edwards, a member of the British parliament, told an audience of 800 last night in the second lecture in the Institute of International Understanding.

The institute sessions which are held at the Senior High school auditorium, are sponsored by the Mansfield Rotary and University clubs.

Functuring the idea that another war is imminent, Edwards declared that "unless we assist other countries by supplying raw materials and money, there can't be another war."

By way of emphasizing this point he stated that there are only 22 raw materials essential to warfare.

"Of these the United States has 14 and Great Britain has 13, while no other single nation possesses more than six and some have only one," Edwards said. "Italy with her one raw material for warfare, is about as much of a menace as a troop of boys."

"What are we going to do about it?" he asked, as he pointed out that the British speaking peoples have more of the earth's surface, more wealth, greater naval strength, superior man power and a greater productive capacity than any or all the other nations of the world. And in reply he retorted: "We must show the world how to make peace more profitable than war."

"When English speaking people say we will stand together in defense of peace, democracy and small nations, peace will be established on earth," Edwards said, basing his words on his own discussion of the topic "Organizing the World for Peace."

Edwards' statement recalled the furor over the charge made recently in congress that there is a secret agreement between the United States and English government on naval co-operation.

The British visitor said that he felt that the greatest burden to all nations was the placing of profit above human life, and that "we, as peace loving people, must, through our ability to control war material, go forth honestly endeavoring to establish peace by agreement and righting of old wrongs."

Citing the stupendous profits made out of the World war, and warning of the possibilities of profits in any future encounter, Edwards charged his audience to beware of statements coming from vested interests and persons in apparent authority. As he gave examples of the profits made by armament manufacturers in the last war, he urged his listeners to support a co-operative movement whereby the United States and Great Britain, with their combined powers, might, by honest endeavor, eradicate war from the modern world.

STATE TO BARE CASE IN CHILD SLAYING TRIAL

Girl Athlete, Denying Charge She Killed Youngster, 5, Eyes Mixed Jury.

PHILADELPHIA.—Part of the heart tearing suspense was to be lifted today for Mary "Pete" O'Connor.

The husky 19-year-old co-ed athlete will know whether the commonwealth will demand, as the prosecutor hinted, the electric chair for the slaying last Labor day of little Nancy Glenn.

As the second day of the dramatic trial opened in a dingy courtroom on the sixth floor of city hall, both Assistant District Attorney Charles P. Gordon and William A. Gray, noted defense attorney, were prepared to outline their plans for the first time.

Gray has said the defense will be unusual, and Gordon intimated, challenging a juror, that he may seek a death penalty for Mary, standing trial before nine men, five of them bachelors, and three women on charges of murder, manslaughter and involuntary manslaughter.

In spite of the fact that Gordon left the way open to seek a first degree verdict, there were indications the commonwealth would be satisfied with a second degree conviction, carrying a penalty of 10 to 20 years imprisonment.

"I am not guilty," Mary pleaded when called before the court of Judge Joseph Sloane to answer for the death of five-year-old Nancy.

But the commonwealth is banking heavily on two reputed confessions—one unsigned and the other hearsay. In the former, the co-ed, known to college friends at Temple university as "Tarzan," allegedly said:

"Nancy wanted a ride on my bike. I said 'No.' Then I got angry and struck her with my fist. She fell down and lay still, and I felt her pulse. As far as I know, it wasn't beating. I rolled her over and her face was down in the water. I saw a big piece of tin, and pulled it over Nancy. I was nervous and went home."

The other confession she purportedly made to her closest friend, Mrs. Marie Phillips, 1936 American Olympic team gymnast, the day after Nancy's body was found in the mud puddle and 10 weeks before the law accused her.

"Considering the bad weather still raging west of Sardinia, the seaplane must be considered definitely lost," the official communiqué said.

SEEKS POWER TO HANDLE ESTATE

Widow Applies For Appointment as Executrix For Husband.

An estate estimated at $42,000 was left by the late Walter Dow, Mansfield, according to the application for administration filed in probate court by his widow, Mrs. Ethel Dow.

Stating that she believed her husband left no will, Mrs. Dow asks that she be appointed executrix of the estate and that W. B. Order, C. F. Fighter and George C. Ballet be named appraisers.

The estimate of the estate includes $30,000 in real estate and $12,000 in personal property, mostly stocks and securities.

Mr. Dow, who was associated with the Ohio Brass company for 20 years, died Feb. 6. He lived at 66 Marion avenue and had two sons, both minors.

NEARING JURY
Gangster, Accused of Slaying, May Know Fate Today.

NEWARK, N. J. (INS)—The fate of Newark's two gangsters, 18-year-old Genevieve (Chippy) Owens and 20-year-old Mrs. Ethel (Bunny) Sobel, charged with the murder of a Bus Driver William Barhorst in a $210 holdup, may be placed in the hands of the jury today.

The defense rested yesterday after "Chippy," in a desperate attempt to save her own life, placed the entire blame on her older companion.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Reports of Resignations.
WHEN THE members of a president's cabinet retire it is usually for one of three reasons—either they really want to get back to private life or they find themselves, personally or politically, not in accord with the president; or the president, for reasons of his own, wants to put someone else in their place.

Considering the amazing variety of the policies pursued by Mr. Roosevelt, the opportunities which they present for disagreement or dissent and his well-known impatience with either, it is remarkable that in five years the only new faces in his official family have come through death and not resignation. Putting aside Secretary Hull, who is in a class by himself, the explanation seems to be that the other nine individuals who, no matter what course the president proposes, will never contradict, and who hate to think of the time when they must return to the relative obscurity from which they came.

HOWEVER, this state of affairs has not prevented either speculation about changes in the cabinet, or rather vigorous efforts, though wholly unsuccessful so far, to pry some of its members loose from their posts. In the earlier days these centered around the secretary of labor and the secretary of commerce, and there are still recurrent reports of their involuntary retirement. More recently, the two cabinet changes most discussed as likely to occur concern Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Attorney General Cummings.

So far as the former is concerned, he is much easier in his mind now that Joseph P. Kennedy, newly appointed British ambassador, is about to sail for England. Morgenthau, for a long time, has thought Kennedy would like to have his job. And he had very good reason for thinking so, because the unusually frank Kennedy made no secret of his desire in conversation either with his friends, with the president or with Morgenthau and at one time he was quite upset about it. Now he is much calmer.

THE FACT is that Mr. Roosevelt does not want to make a change in the treasury. Morgenthau is exactly the sort of secretary he wants there. To those who from time to time have pointed out that it would be easily possible to get a stronger man for his vital post, and it would help him and the country to have one, Mr. Roosevelt invariably replied: "But what can I do with Henry?" That has ended the argument. There was nothing to do with Henry except to fiddle with his tax experts and fiscal advisers, loyally supporting the fiscal policies which, in one form or another, were sold to the president.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The Schnickelfritzes are as incredible as their name. It sounds like a gag, and it is—half a dozen of them.

They, or it, is a band. Freddie Fisher's Schnickelfritz band from Minnesota. Rudy Vallee gave a party to show them off they're in Rudy's "Gold Diggers in Paris" at his insistence—and the show-off was amazing.

They are a rustic novelty crew of the musical jester school. All six of them manage to look like bewildered boobies. They don't dare look anything else, this being expected of ex-farmhands, as Paul Cooper, pianist and arranger, explained. Cooper used to be a radio announcer (Wichita Falls, Tex.).

"There ain't one of us six who can't milk a cow," said Kenneth Trisko, trap drummer, with pride. "If things go bad in the band, I can always go back to bartering," proclaimed Stanley Fritts, the twirling trombonist. (He brought his contrabass from Omaha's barber college along, just in case.)

Fisher organized the group in Winona, Minn., late in 1935. A year ago they began making phonograph discs which sold like Shirley Temple dolls. Vallee found them in a Minneapolis night club. They had gotten together—from Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Together, they found out, they could do the demand thing. They still do. One of them is "Wreck of the Old 97," with Neils Laakso, the Finnish cornetist, playing a train whistle while the others do a choo-choo with their feet and smoke comes out of Maestro Fisher's tall hat.

Hats, it is soon apparent, are fairly vital to the Schnickelfritzes. They brought two trunksful of old hats with them. One of the main uses of hats, which may sound unusual but isn't, is to keep the hats going, from one player to another, in endless chain while the music plays.

The trombone is Fritts' forte, by no means his only talent. His specialty is, believe it, the easel. That isn't a musical instrument except in this band. To it are fastened assorted objects. He strums a washboard, taps out cadences on a cowbell and frying pan with thimble fingers.

Nels Laakso, youngest of the six, is considered a "real artist" on the cornet—triple-tongued and easy master of high C. He's a glum-looking individual, with a flair for comedy.

Charles Koenig, the smallest, plays—what did you expect?—the big sax instruments. At 152 pounds ringside weight, Koenig wrestles with the tuba (25 pounds) and the bull fiddle (21 pounds).

Kenneth Trisko does the drums, which include drums and other things.

All of them play the hats.

STEPHEN FOSTER TOPIC AT STUDY CLUB MEETING

Mrs. Lawrence J. Smith Traces Life of Noted American Composer of Folk Music Before Little Flower Members Monday.

MRS. LAWRENCE J. SMITH presented a paper on the life of Stephen Foster at the meeting of the Little Flower Study club at the home of Mrs. Frank Mahoney, 403 Sherman place, last night. Foster's greatest contribution, according to Mrs. Smith, were the songs he wrote growing out of his feeling that the Negro life should be commemorated in song.

Foster was one of the first to write the so-called plantation songs which have come to be known as American folk songs. The man himself, Mrs. Smith indicated, was an intensely human figure, modest, kind and generous with a beautiful baritone voice in which he sang, with pathetic tenderness, his melodies.

He not only wrote Negro songs, but tender love lyrics. Mrs. Smith stated. The finest of his sentimental songs were about home and mother for family life was one of his greatest emotional ties.

In addition, he wrote such non-sense songs as "Oh Susanna" and "De Campdown Races." One of his most tender ballads is "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," which was written following his mother's death. Although it is not so well known, he was also a writer of many temperance tunes.

Some of Foster's more famous compositions include "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe" and "Old Folks at Home." In all he has had some 200 compositions published.

The musician was born in Pittsburgh, July 4, 1826, and at an early age exhibited musical talent by picking out tunes on his sister's guitar and playing his first composition, "The Tioga Waltz," on the flute. The latter was written when he was about 14. His first published song was "Open Thy Lattice, Love."

Many monuments have been erected to Foster, the most elaborate of which is the one on the campus of the University of Pittsburgh which contains some 10,000 Foster items. Mrs. Smith interspersed her talk with musical examples of the various Foster selections.

Following the meeting refreshments were served at a table decorated with tall red tapers and a floral centerpiece in valentine colors. The next meeting will be Feb. 28 at the home of Mrs. Joseph Kuebler, 169 West Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Leuthner, 528 West Townview Circle, left Sunday for Miami, Fla., for a two weeks' vacation.

—Advice—
How Can Girl Win Love of Cautious Man?

By VIRGINIA LEE

Just what can a girl do to win a man's love without hurting her own pride and making her intentions too obvious to others by "chasing him"?

I've seen it done. When a man likes a girl but isn't in love with her, she can encourage him by showing that she likes his attention. If he is away from her, ask him to write and chide him—perhaps rather playfully—if he doesn't. She can expect him to take her out, can make occasions for him to come to her home by having little parties, fairs, etc., and make him her partner in them.

These are very obvious ways, and very good ones—quite legitimate—and I've seen them convert the friend into the lover. They give the man a chance to really know the girl well and often when he knows her very well he likes her and decides she is the one girl in the world for him. She has to take the chance of his deciding that he doesn't care for her, of course.

Feels She Doesn't Care.

Every woman who has passed middle age, I am sure, can look back and see that she probably let the man who attracted her very much get away just because she was "too proud" to put out her hands to him. A woman in love with a man is so apt to be so afraid others will discover her feelings or that he will be frightened away if he realizes that she cares, that she goes to the other extreme and is so frigid that she convinces him, instead, that she hasn't any use for him.

MARION is in this position of loving and not knowing how to transform a man who merely likes her, but who is disinclined to wed, into a lover. She doesn't want her letter printed, but she is sure her love is enduring, although she is only 18, because it has lasted through several years.

The man evidently likes you, Marion, but hasn't fallen in love enough to make marriage seem desirable to him. He evidently has made up his mind not to wed for some time—until he has saved a great deal of money, you say—and he hasn't seen enough of you to show him how desirable you are. Could you invite him to your home with other young people, and show him a little that you like him? I think you could do that without hurting your pride or seeming to run after him. If you could include him in your group and oblige him to know you better, it might do the trick.

Don't, however, make up your mind that you will never marry if you can't get him. Another four years may show you that he may not be THE one, after all, so encourage yourself to put him out of your mind if he remains indifferent.

BILL K. I do not know the names or addresses of F. and H. BILL. I guess they just wrote to encourage you.

Ideal Mask Made From Honey

Favored Fashions

Frivolous or Serious One of These Aprons Fits Mood.

If someone in the family has a birthday Feb. 22 or if you're just a patriotic soul and want to celebrate the birthday of the father of our country with a fitting tribute why not serve a cherry pie-top dessert? The one pictured above is simple to prepare. It requires ½ cup drained sour pitted cherries, ½ cup sugar, two tablespoons butter combined and placed in the bottoms of individual buttered baking dishes. The ingredients

For the cake and the method follows:

Two eggs well beaten, one cup sugar, one cup pastry flour or (one cup all-purpose flour minus two tablespoons), one-half teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half cup hot milk, one-half teaspoon lemon extract. Beat the eggs until light yellow and creamy. Add the sugar and continue beating. Sift the flour, soda,

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty."

HONEY, I BELIEVE, is one of the oldest cosmetics known. Famous beauties of the past used it often.

Honey really is highly beneficial and refining in its effects on the skin, but personally, I think that its properties are greatly enhanced when it is used as a face mask. When combined with the proper ingredients, honey forms a truly excellent face mask. It has a tendency to draw dirt particles to the skin surface, and bleaches and clears the skin, giving it a soft, satin-like finish.

Before the honey pack is applied to the face, a mask should be made from a square of cheesecloth or fine gauze. Holes should be cut in the cheesecloth or gauze for the eyes and mouth and the paste itself should then be carefully prepared.

To prepare the paste for this mask, enough strained honey should be mixed with half a cup of almond meal to make a thick, creamy mixture. A few drops of witch hazel or rosewater should then be added, and the entire mixture blended until it is of a consistency that will spread easily and smoothly over the skin. If the paste seems too thick at first, you can thin it out by using a bit more of the witch hazel or rosewater.

Previous to the application of the mask, of course, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed. It is an excellent plan to use a good cold cream for this purpose, for it will soften the skin, open the pores and cleanse them of all extraneous matter.

The cream should then be wiped away with cleansing tissue, and a scrubbing with a pure, bland soap and tepid water administered. And as the final step, before the application of the mask, a bit of tissue cream should be smoothed about the eyes and mouth.

When the skin has been correctly prepared, the application of the pack itself should be made. The cheesecloth mask should be placed over the face, and a generous quantity of the honey and almond paste should be spread over it.

Ingredients Seep Through Cloth.

Of course, with ordinary masks, the paste employed is applied directly to the skin. But in the honey pack the proper ingredients seep through the cheesecloth mask in just the right quantities to benefit the skin.

In order to get the best results, this pack should be permitted to remain on the face for at least half an hour. And, if possible, you should lie down and relax completely during the period.

After half an hour the pack may be removed simply by lifting off the cheesecloth mask. This is the added advantage of placing the cotton mask beneath the actual pack, as it facilitates removing. Then any honey that has seeped through the cheesecloth or gauze should be removed with a soft cloth and tepid water.

The final step in this beauty treatment should be the application of a good astringent, to close the pores and tone up the skin. This pack will not only have a soothing and refining effect on the skin, but will also help to bleach it and leave it smooth and fine-textured.

Payment of Taxi Fare Makes Scene

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am upset about something which happened the other day, and wish you would tell me if I was wrong, and if so, what I can do about straightening out the matter now. I have a friend who comes often to spend the afternoon with me, and afterwards I always drive her home. The other day she came but, soon after arriving, felt ill and as it happened my car was being repaired and I could not drive her home. So I ordered a taxi and as I accompanied her to it I asked her to let me pay for it, which I felt was my duty as a hostess. But she answered, "Thank you for getting the cab but don't insult me by offering to pay for it." I telephoned her house that evening and next day to inquire how she was feeling, but did not talk with her. I want to go to see her but frankly am embarrassed at the thought of meeting her face to face since she obviously felt that I was very unkind.

Answer: I don't think you have anything to be ashamed of nor am I quite sure why she was upset at your offer to pay. All she had to do was to say, "Thank you very much for ordering the taxi but I couldn't think of letting you pay for it." It is almost impossible to know just what goes on in the mind of another person when we do something that we think is kind and they think that we have done something unkind. If you had been able, and had thought of it, you might of course have gone in the taxi with her to see that she got home safely, and then brought yourself back again in the taxi and paid the double fare. It seems to me that the least said, the better. If I were you I'd go to see her and ask her how she feels and say nothing about the taxi incident unless she speaks of it to you. If she does, then say that you had done merely what you thought your duty, as a hostess, exacted of you.

If you wish to shade the bright light that hangs down from the ceiling in the bedroom why not drape a pretty colored handkerchief over the light?

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint.

Corn and Tomato Casserole
Cabbage and Apple Salad
Pecan Pie Coffee

You may use canned tomatoes in the casserole recipe at this time of year, and fresh tomatoes in the summer time.

Today's Recipes

PECAN PIE—The filling: Three eggs, slightly beaten; one cup sugar, one cup dark corn syrup, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half to one cup pecan meats, coarsely chopped; one teaspoon vanilla. Mix the above ingredients, adding the nuts last. Pour into a standard size pie pan or into an eight-inch square shallow pan, which has been lined with pastry. Place in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for about ten minutes, then reduce the oven to a low heat (325 degrees F.) and bake until the filling is firm, about fifty minutes. After about forty minutes insert a silver knife blade into the filling; the pie is done when knife comes out clean; continue baking until test proves successful. The filling will appear quite thin when first poured into the pan, but puffs up during the baking; when done the top will be firm and crusty, with pecans showing. Cool slowly.

Pie Crust One and three-fourths cups flour, one-fourth cup cornstarch, eight tablespoons cold water to moisten—about four tablespoons; one-half teaspoon salt. Sift the flour, cornstarch and salt into a bowl. Stir in the shortening, and moisten with water to consistency desired. Turn onto a floured board and roll out at once.

Rose bushes grow best in an open and sunny position, planted in a rich garden loam deeply dug and enriched with well rotted cow manure or bone meal.

Shop-Wise

Buy in quantity if you have a good refrigerator. The food is usually cheaper and it will keep and you won't be put out when unexpected guests arrive.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I HAD no trouble whatever in drifting into slumber after Dicky's injunction not to stir from my bed for two hours. If he had driven sleep from me in the morning by his captiousness, he had brought me the gift of it again by putting my mind at ease concerning his attitude toward me. Whatever the "jam" into which he had gotten himself in New York, two things were certain, his love for me had in no way changed, unless all my perceptions—and my instincts—were betraying me, and he had no need of my love and any resourcefulness I might possess. Any wife knows why I was able to go to sleep swiftly and peacefully upon those assurances, and I did not awaken until 10 minutes before the two hours he had named. I dressed swiftly and rearranged my hair, and was sitting quietly by the window when he came to my door again.

"Didn't you sleep?" he demanded imperiously.

"Like a top," I answered banally. "I don't believe I ever slept more soundly in my life. I only awakened 10 minutes ago. How is Mary?"

Madge Feels Fit.

"Restless, but otherwise okay," he retorted. "But there's somebody more important than Mary to be considered. How do you feel?"

"Fit as the traditional fiddle," I told him.

"You look better," he admitted. "Sure you didn't fib to me? You really did sleep?"

"Never better. Honest! Cross my heart!" I wrinkled my nose at him. "And I suppose, if Mary's restless, we would better get started as soon as possible."

"I suppose that's true," he said grudgingly. "But I do hate to see you go. However, there's no help for it. If you'll show me where your traps are, I'll help Jim tote them out to the car. I sent him down to the garage with the car while you were sleeping and had it thoroughly serviced for the five commandments—gas, water, oil, tires and battery. I also had a check-up and tightening of wires and gadgets. It ought to be foolproof."

"I thank you for the compliment," I told him, laughing. "but even more for the servicing. It was very thoughtful of you. As for the luggage—Mary's and mine—Kate has taken all the bags and gowns downstairs to the back hall. You won't need to bother if you don't want to. Katie and Jim can pack the car."

"And how!" Dicky intoned fervently. "You can bet I'll keep out. With Katie as drum major, it's no place for anybody save her brown-bitten husband. Shall I tell them to go ahead?"

"Please do," I said. "I'll be ready to start inside of 10 minutes, and I'll run over now and tell Mary and Miss Whitlock to get ready, too."

"Just a second," He barred my way to the door by the simple expedient of putting both his arms tightly around me. And then for a long instant he gazed questioningly down into my eyes.

Melt fat in heavy pot or skillet and brown ribs, cut in pieces. Make a sauce of remaining ingredients, pour over browned ribs

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, February 16.

ACCORDING to rather subtle planetary operations, this may be a day in which secret, underhand and intriguing activities are upmost, possibly stimulating the inner, secret and emotional nature to express itself and gain its ends by connivance, secrecy and lack of direct agreements.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which peculiar, secret and chaste conditions may prevail, or such activities may be brought to light. Suspicious, curious and intriguing situations may be dragged into the open by a shrewd and far-seeing mind and good judgment, even though the results may prove unsettling.

A child born on this day may have a very shrewd, versatile and probably tireless mind, with certain slants toward the intuitive, mystical or peculiar, in which the emotions may play an inspiring part. It may be taciturn, agreeable and kindly.

GRAPEFRUIT MERINGUE PIE—Eight tablespoons cornstarch, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and three-fourths cups boiling water, three egg yolks, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup grapefruit juice, three egg whites, six tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon grated rind. Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add boiling water, stirring to blend well. Cook for 15 minutes in double boiler, stirring until thick and smooth. Beat egg yolks slightly and pour cornstarch mixture into them slowly, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and cook two minutes longer. Remove from stove and add butter, grapefruit juice and rind, stirring until well blended. Cool. Pour into nine-inch baked pie shell. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating until stiff and glossy. Pipe on pie and brown in slow oven (325 F.) for 15 minutes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

USE IT AGAINST HIM

"Whatever you say can be used against you" That is an axiom of court procedure and it applies equally in bridge. Incidentally you can employ it as a weapon against the other fellow. Careful consideration of what his bid showed, coupled with a bit of planning, may disclose to you the one way whereby your objective may be attained.

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Nail Biting.

Nettie: Nail biting is a habit that you will have to overcome through your own perseverance. A bit of tincture of aloes applied to the fingertips will help you in breaking yourself of this habit.

Wash angora bonnets and mittens in warm suds made of pure white soap to which one teaspoon of ammonia has been added. Rinse in several waters of the same temperature; wring out in a Turkish towel, and dry as quickly as possible.

and simmer or bake till tender, one and a half to two hours. If baked, have slow oven. Remove ribs and add boiled noodles to sauce in pan, mix and serve.

West started the bidding on this deal with 1-No Trump, North passed, East called 2-Diamonds, South 2-Hearts and North jumped to 4-Hearts.

Against this contract, West laid down the diamond A and followed with the K. Mrs. Humphrey Wagor of Atlanta, the declarer, took note of that to help her in figuring out just what West's no trump bid was based on. West's switch then to the spade Q was won in the South hand with the K.

The heart A was now cashed and followed by the heart J, as for his no trump bid, West no doubt held the Q. The heart 10 was next played, covered by the Q and K. Next in succession the spade A, a spade ruff, a diamond ruff and another spade ruff. On the eleventh trick, Mrs. Wagor led the club 10 to West, knowing that he had nothing to return but a club up to her A-Q. Played in this way, she lost nothing but the two diamonds and one club.

THEATER

THE Motion Picture Academy will award its gold statuette in the near future to the "best" this and that of last year, and guesses are rife as to who and what it will be no surprise if "The Life of Emilie Zola" is named the best picture of last year, even though Muni and Warner were the award last year for their "Life of Louis Pasteur". On the contrary, there will be considerable surprise if "Zola" does not bring home the statuette to the Warner Boys, for it has been selected in all of the national polls conducted by magazines and newspapers, the latest being the poll of the Minneapolis Journal.

MOST AILMENTS AND DISEASES CAUSED BY CATARRH OR STOMACH

World's Tonic, The Systemic Treatment, is Made to Help Overcome Catarrh. It Brings Splendid Results in a Short Time

Most ailments and diseases are caused or aggravated by the faulty working of the stomach. When vital organs fail or falter in their duty, toxins are not cleared out of the system. They remain and bring on bad health. Catarrhal conditions of the mucous membranes of the gall bladder and duct, and of the intestinal tract and stomach, derange the whole digestive system.

The victim is invariably troubled with loss of sleep and energy, fickle appetite and sour, gassy stomach, foul breath, old fashioned stomach ache, such as constipation, gastritis and sourness, indigestion—pains from gas in the stomach, belching and similar well known symptoms follow. Authorities state that nine out of ten people in the American cities are likely to be so affected, and it is partly due to catarrhal conditions.

World's Tonic, the new treatment for catarrh, acts in a quick and efficient manner in helping to cleanse and clear the intestinal tract, stimulate the bowels and liver. Thus Nature is assisted in discharging from the system the very elements and impurities which cause the manifestations of the symptoms and ailments allied with the stomach, liver and kidneys. With the stomach, liver the system cleared and cleansed, World's Tonic takes up the work of stimulating these lagging vital organs, and when they are restored and working harmoniously once more, one is bound to enjoy good health.

Kidneys filter the blood, keeping it rich and pure. Liver and bowels work fine, and with stomach digesting and appetite restored to normal, one receives great benefit from the nourishment derived from the food. Like a well oiled machine, the system converts the food we eat into strength and tissue, while the waste is cleared quickly and entirely. One may eat what he wishes without fear of after effects. Elderly people with catarrh of the stomach, kidneys or liver, find World's Tonic is very effective catarrhal treatment. It gives quick and good results in the different forms of catarrh.

The picture of Zola's life and his vehement crusade for Dreyfus marked a milestone in motion pictures, for it made a biography a living and authentic thing. Any child seeing it would remember far more of Zola than if he had studied the life of the fiery writer over a period of years. And Muni's delineation of Zola will remain one of the camoes of pictures for a long time.

A Busy Blonde.

Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane will continue their feuding in "Blondes at Work", which is booked for Wednesday and Thursday at the Madison. This is the fourth independent episode in the career of Torchy Blane, a newspaper woman who wages a battle with the police lieutenant as portrayed by MacLane. Whether the Torchy pictures are authentic as to newspaper background is highly debatable, but they carry a story that sustains interest. In this one Torchy again shows up her dumb detective friend, solves a murder mystery and scores a scoop on all of the other reporters in town. Betty Compson who once was a star of magnitude and whose greatest role was in "The Miracle Man", is seen in the supporting cast.

Still The Best.

And speaking of blondes, Sonja Henie remains one of the "cutest" in cinemaland, as her third picture, "Happy Landings" proves. In fact on her recent personal appearance tour when arenas were sold out weeks in advance, the general reaction was on her appearance rather than her skating. There is a story to the effect that the dimpled little Norwegian took such a severe panning from the press on her unexciting skating exhibition that her boss, Darryl Zanuck called her from Los Angeles and told her to start skating or come home. And thereafter the exhibitions improved. In "Happy Landings" she proves that even though she didn't put on much of a show, while on tour, she is still the most graceful and beautiful of figure skaters. Don Ameche aids her in carrying out

ALCOHOLISM

SAFELY CONQUERED FOR THOUSANDS IN AN AVERAGE TIME OF 48 HOURS NOW AVAILABLE IN CLEVELAND

The acknowledged successful Samaritan Treatment has overcome dangerous Alcoholism for thousands of men and women by ridding them of the desire and craving—stopping destructive drinking and relieving the disease. It has restored the worst chronic cases to health, happiness and success with increased vitality and ambition in an average time of only 48 hours.

The Samaritan Treatment is nationally known and the demand for its service is three times greater than one year ago due to its phenomenal success in even the most difficult cases.

Field Day For Sleuths.

Amateur sleuths who like to solve the murder mystery before the end of the picture, will have a field day in "The Black Doll", one of the Majestic theater attractions for three days, beginning today. A murder is committed and there are six suspects who had every reason and opportunity for committing the deed. To add to the mystery there are two more murders in a police guarded house. "The Black Doll" is based on a Crime Club novel. Also on the bill is "These Three", with Joel McCrea, Merle Oberon and Miriam Hopkins, the picture version of the sensational stage play "The Children's Hour". It is the story of three lives that were brought to the brink of ruin and tragedy by the false gossip of a child.

Comedy and Drama.

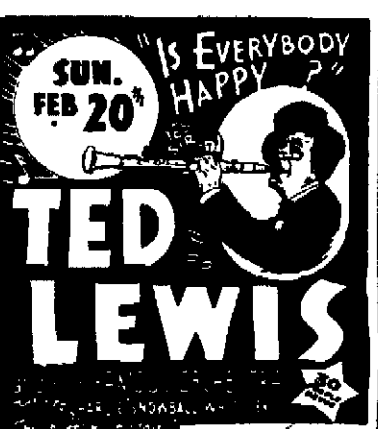

A comedy and a drama in pictures are combined to make up the Ritz bill for the mid-week, starting today. The comedy is "Four Naughty Girls" with James Gleason and Zasu Pitts. The drama is the Betty Davis picture, "That Certain Woman" in which she is co-starred with Henry Fonda, and with Ian Hunter and Anita Louise in major supporting roles. Miss Davis, one of the better actresses of the screen, plays a girl who made one bad mistake—that of marrying a gangster. She is made to pay for her mistake for years, despite her sincere efforts to turn her back on the past and walk a straight path. Ian Hunter plays one of the men who try to aid her, while Henry Fonda, like Hunter, brings her more trouble. Unlike many of the Davis pictures, this one has a pleasant ending.

INSTALLS NEW SOUND SYSTEM

Majestic Theater Gets Latest RCA Equipment.

The Majestic theater is operating this week with a new sound system which was installed in the building over the week-end. The new equipment is RCA high fidelity sound apparatus, which has incorporated a number of new technical improvements that reproduce sound with unusual naturalness.

Wayne Williams, manager of the theater, said the apparatus will give an even distribution of sound over the auditorium so that the "dead spots" in the house are eliminated, and listeners in the

RED CROSS ADDS DIRECTOR FOR FIRST AID WORK

Richland Chapter Announces Expansion Program; Enlow Named to New Post.

The Richland County Chapter of the Red Cross today announced a program expansion which includes the addition of a new full time director of first aid and accident prevention and enlarged headquarters in the Bowers block.

Harker A. Enlow, actively identified with Red Cross first aid work in the county since 1927, has been retained as director of the county program which includes first aid classes, highway emergency first aid stations and the home and farm accident prevention program.

Richland county chapter is one of the few small chapters in the United States to retain a full time first aid director. This extended service was made possible, Gertrude B. English, executive secretary said, by the increased response to the Roll Call last fall.

Plans 6 New Stations. Enlow's program for the year includes the establishment of five new highway first aid stations, one of which will be sponsored by the Shelby branch, and 50 classes in the study of emergency first aid. This program will give Richland county a total of nine highway stations, as four are already operating. Last year the Red Cross trained 261 adults in the county in first aid, as well as a number of high school students.

Dr. Albert H. Sharpe, field representative in first aid from national headquarters, arrived yesterday to conduct advanced classes for first aid instructors for a period of two weeks. Classes will be held in the Ohio Brass factory office building from 7 to 10 p. m. The classes started last night.

The chapter has acquired additional space in the Bowers block, Fourth and Main street. Mrs. English said. The office of the executive secretary will be moved into the room now occupied by Mrs. English. A third room will be used for office work and the fourth for Red Cross supplies.

In addition to Enlow, the chapter will again retain a full time swimming instructor for three months during the summer, a service that was inaugurated last summer.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 10
Bad Debts
—Year in Which Deductible.
To be allowed as a deduction from gross income, a bad debt must have been determined by the taxpayer to be worthless within the taxable year in which it is claimed and, where books are kept, it also must have been charged off within the same year. The necessity for this provision is obvious. If a debt could be deducted without the requirement that it be charged off by the taxpayer's books, the veracity of its worthlessness would be open to question. Neither the taxpayer nor the government could be certain that a debt would not be claimed more than once.
If a bad debt were allowed as a deduction without regard to the year when it became worthless, such charges could be accumulated to be deducted in a year when there was a large income.
The burden is upon the taxpayer to show that a debt claimed as a deduction was without value during the taxable year. A statement should be attached to the return showing the propriety of any deductions for bad debts. If in the exactness of business judgment a taxpayer concludes, after making every reasonable effort to determine whether there is likelihood of recovery, that the debt is of no value, deduction for such debt is allowable. Court action as proof that the debt is worthless is not essential.
It is optional with the taxpayer, in a year prior to that in which a debt becomes wholly worthless, to take a deduction for partial loss if partial worthlessness occurs. If it can be shown that upon maturity of a bond, mortgage, or note evidencing a debt it will not be paid in full, the partial loss is deductible.

YOUTHS JAILED

Two Will Be Arraigned Tomorrow On Delinquency Charge.
Two 14-year-old colored youths held in the city jail will be arraigned on a delinquency charge before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court Wednesday.
They were arrested yesterday after an employee of the Mansfield Transfer and Storage company, 111 North Adams street, had complained to police that they were driving several trucks parked in a vacant lot beside the warehouse.

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated—due to lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft, bulky mass in the bowels. It's this mass that helps your bowels move.
The common sense thing to do about it is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-aid, vitamin B. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's. Bottle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Dinner Buckets are Rare But Modern Lunch Boxes Show Streamlined Style

New 'Models' Are Gay In Color, and Look Like Cosmetic Kits.

By JANE WILLIAMS
What's become of the old fashioned dinner bucket with the coffee container and tin cup on top? It's probably in the archives of memory along with long red flannel what-chamacall-ems.

A diligent search fails to reveal a single one. Hardware merchants believe they are still in existence, although they haven't been in wholesale catalogs for years.

The modern lunch box has gone streamline, even though, to tell the truth, the lunchbox

THE OLD . . .

E. P. Cusic, 169 Westwood avenue, can remember when he carried one of the old timers with a "cupola" on the top, but this one which he has just emptied, is a lot more satisfactory, for it keeps the coffee hot until time for the sandwiches and pie. This is one of the first "models" with a thermos bottle.

isn't so popular as it once was. Few school children in towns and cities carry them, for with cafeterias in many schools and many neighborhood schools close enough to permit youngsters to go home for the noon meal, there isn't any need for them to eat cold lunches out of a tin box.

Nor do women workers of today carry a lunch box if they can possibly get to a restaurant during the noon hour.

Twenty years ago most workers and school children carried their lunches, and in those old fashioned dinner pails they were pretty lucky if the elderberry pie didn't slide over and land in the cup of pickles. The coffee, being in a tin container, was colder than a Montana winter by the time it was to be consumed.

The first improvement in dinner pails came with the advent of the thermos bottle, which kept coffee hot or iced milk cold for hours. Those first ones with a big thermos bottle in the top, are still very much in use by factory workers and sportsmen.

Today there is an oblong aluminum model in which the coffee, carried in the bottom, is supposed to keep the rest of the dinner warm. This one has four compartments, in layers.

But the snappiest little lunch box on the market is the one for girls which resembles a cosmetic kit, or even a large pocketbook. It is small, with a half pint thermos bottle in one side, and the other side reserved for the kind of sandwiches that a modern girl carries, sort of thin and about the size of three postage stamps. They come in enameled metal with colors as bright and varied as finger nails.

But dinner pails or lunch boxes are no longer fast moving merchandise in stores. Merchants keep only a few in stock for occasional buyers.

THE NEW . . .

Miss Rita Carroll, secretary to City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, is the kind of a modern miss who doesn't carry a lunch box, but if she did, you can be sure it would be one of these streamline little kits in bright enamel. In fact, after posing with it for the News-Journal cameraman, she almost decided in favor of carrying lettuce sandwiches and chocolate milk to work.

Batson Moves Into New Home

The Batson Furniture company, which was formerly located on North Main street, has moved into its new home at 44 West Fourth street. Shown above is a front view of the new store.

In its new location, the company has increased its floor space 15,000 square feet, covering three floors. Increased stock valued at $75,000 also has been added. Several thousand dollars of improvements were made in the building before the firm moved in.

The Batson company was first opened in Mansfield three years ago by Walter Batson. He has been joined in the business recently by C. C. Herrick. Both have had a wide experience in the furniture business, having been associated for the past 25 years with several large companies in Columbus and Akron.

COUNTY NAMED IN LAND SUIT

Bellville Couple Acts to Null Agreement Granting Use of Property For Creek.

The board of Richland county commissioners was made defendant today in a suit filed in common pleas court by Carl McFerren and his wife, Mary, of Bellville, who seek to null an agreement granting the use of land for altering the channel of Clear Fork creek north of Bellville.

Charging that the agreement is a fraud and the intentions of the county in obtaining an easement on the land were misrepresented to him, McFerren asks the court to declare the document void and clear his title to the acre of land involved.

The suit is an aftermath of a number of disagreements between the state highway department and property owners in Bellville over a right-of-way for the new bridge being constructed on route 13 at the northern edge of the village.

The state is chiefly concerned with the cases, and McFerren filed his action against the county commissioners because the highway department obtained its easements in the name of the county board, it was said.

McFerren contends in his suit that the funds paid him for the easement were insufficient to cover damage to his land and that his wife, as part owner of the land, was left out of the agreement.

The plaintiff is represented by Atty. Vance C. Stuller of Bellville.

WOE'S THE WORD

Restaurant Operator Faces 136-Day Stay In Jail.

"Woe is me," sighed a North Franklin street restaurant operator yesterday as police took him to county jail to "sit out" a $200 fine for selling whiskey without a license.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kaibfleisch in municipal court, Anderson Chick, colored, near 272 North Franklin street, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal sale of whiskey and was fined $200 and costs. Unable to pay he was committed to the county jail. With a 136-day stay in jail, serving it out at the rate of $1.50 a day.

Chick was arrested by Detectives Harry Copper and E. C. Guller Saturday night. They testified that when they walked into the restaurant three men were sitting at the table with three glasses of whiskey which they said was purchased from Chick at 10 cents each. In the back room, the officers said, they found three open bottles of liquor.

While the restaurant operator had a 32 beer permit, he admitted carrying on the whiskey business for the past three months, police said.

CLOSES HEARING

Commission Takes Railroad's Plea Under Consideration.

Against protests from the city of Sandusky, the Ohio Utilities Commission today ordered hearings closed on the application of the B. and O. railway for abandonment of passenger service between Willard and Sandusky.

The application, which also seeks permission to discontinue trains No. 47 and 47 operating between Willard and Newark through Mansfield, was taken under advisement by the commission.

Representatives of the commission indicated that a decision on the railroad's application would be announced later.

Civic organizations and business interests in Sandusky have waged a spirited fight to keep their train service to the south, but railroad officials contended the trains on the Willard-Sandusky branch were not paying sufficient returns to warrant continued operation.

19-YEAR-OLD DOG

Surprise Party Planned For 20th Birthday of Canine

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—(INS)—When William Lohr got a license for his pet dog here, the clerk thought he had made a mistake. Next to the place marked "age" Lohr had distinctly written "19."

The animal is a brown collie and appears in normal health. Lohr says he is planning a surprise party for the dog on his 20th birthday.

Chick was arrested by Detectives Harry Copper and E. C. Guller Saturday night. They testified that when they walked into the restaurant three men were sitting at the table with three glasses of whiskey which they said was purchased from Chick at 10 cents each. In the back room, the officers said, they found three open bottles of liquor.

While the restaurant operator had a 32 beer permit, he admitted carrying on the whiskey business for the past three months, police said.

CHAPTER XXIX

Terry and Gerta glanced to be talking together and Caradad was the only one in the rear seat to sense that something was amiss. She sat perfectly still, but her heart pounded strangely when she saw Severance slip a heavy automatic from under the pocket flap and hide it in his lap. His eyes were fixed intently on the rear-vision mirror.

A slight scream from Gerta broke the silence. The heavy sedan was forging past and deliberately cutting in on Jerry. Severance lifted himself from his seat, steadying himself with his left hand. His right, holding the gun, came into view. Tom, the footman, swung about in his place. He, too, had a gun in his hand.

It was all over in an instant. Another hysterical scream from Gerta was drowned by a clash of fenders striking and grinding. Caradad had a confused vision of men's faces peering from the sedan. She felt the touring car jerk uncertainly and saw their chauffeur tugging at the wheel savagely, then slow his machine as the sedan shot ahead.

"The coupe is picking up, sir," the footman reported to Severance, with a touch of fingers to his cap.

"They're both on their way," his employer observed. "That was very good, Jerry. Back up as far as the gate. Everything is clear behind you."

Yes, sir, Thank you, sir." "I never was so frightened in my life!" Gerta exclaimed, leaning back. "I was sure that dreadful man was going to hit us. Do you suppose he was drunk?"

It must be that Gerta had not noticed the display of guns in her fright, Caradad thought.

"Must have been," Terry decided. "We're lucky they didn't hook into us."

He was frowning as he lighted a cigarette. Caradad felt a little thrill of pride when she noticed how perfectly steady his hands were. He was quite as cool as Severance, yet he must have known that other car had tried to force them off the road. That the coupe had something to do with it. She wanted very much to know what it all was about, but would ask no questions now on Gerta's account. The latter was still shaken from her experience when they reached the farmhouse, although she insisted that she was quite all right and ready to ride.

Terry found his opportunity to question his host alone while Lief Sorenson was saddling and bringing the horses from the stables.

"Stick-up?" he suggested quietly.

"Hardly." Severance frowned as he crowded fresh tobacco into the bowl of his pipe. "I think, though, we'd best try to make Miss Vardell believe it was she has plenty of nerve. . . don't think that Mrs. Greenway realized there was anything more to it than a near road smash."

"Those birds were after something," Terry insisted. "Tough-looking mugs, from what I saw. They meant business. Lucky you were heeled. Do you always go that way?"

"Mostly. I keep late hours on the road and in town. Have gun permits for the boys, too—they're a dependable pair in a pinch. Look here, Cantine, doesn't it occur to you what those chaps were after?"

"Not if it wasn't dough. You're well known."

"So is Miss Vardell, now."

"But she doesn't. . . What! You mean kidnapping!"

"Not so loud! But why not? She'd be considered a very fair ransom proposition for some shrewd mob. She's been advertised enough."

"That's just it," Terry objected. "There's hardly been time for any organized try. And, how the devil would they know she was coming out to the country today? None of us knew it until late yesterday."

"Those fellows work fast. They may have known about Miss Vardell long before the papers got the story. She has ridden with me before—might easily again. My car's been trailed lately. Jerry discovered that. Yesterday, it was that same brown coupe. They may have a tip-off planted around the hotel."

Terry glanced about uneasily. "You might be right, at that. Do you think there's any danger of their coming back—here?"

"No." If that's their game, they know we're wise and will report it to the police. Which we must do, incidentally. We've most likely ended the danger, for a long time at least. But you must keep a close watch on her, particularly at night. I think it would be a good idea to have a plain-clothes man keep an eye on her during the day for a time."

"Oh, I don't believe that's necessary," Terry observed. "There can't be any danger in broad daylight. I agree with you, though, we can't be too careful at night."

Severance nodded and said nothing. He was telling himself that he would attend to the matter himself. Cantine was like a good many other men—hated to credit the underworld with brains. Probably there was no danger now, but it wouldn't hurt to be on guard.

"I'd try to make the holdup story stick," he advised. "The women are coming out."

"Sure. I get you."

Gerta still was a little pale from her experience, but perfectly composed when mounted on a quiet black mare Severance had selected for her. Caradad had her promised "Yoe" and Terry a clean-limbed sorrel. The two rode side by side down the lane, their host and Gerta leading the way.

Mindful of Severance's advice, Terry made it a point to keep the conversation away from the highway incident. He studied the horses with care, picked out this and that point and commented on them to his companion with an air of authority. Caradad was equally interested and enthusiastic.

"Have you noticed," she went on with an abrupt change in the topic, "how well Gerta and Mr. Severance get on together? They make a very nice looking pair, too."

Terry stared at the two riders ahead a moment. "Yes," he said briefly.

"It might be very nice, I would think, if they were to become interested in each other," Caradad pursued. "You told me once, I believe, that Gerta ought to have a rich husband. Mr. Severance is quite a catch—I've heard."

"I reckon he is."

Throughout the ride, which proved a two-hour excursion along secluded byroads, Severance devoted himself almost exclusively to Gerta. Terry seemed to be having one of his preoccupied spells and had very little to say.

When they neared the farmhouse on their return, Severance explained that he had to be back in the city at a fairly early hour. He had directed Mrs. Sorenson to prepare a supply of sandwiches and there was plenty to drink for those who felt inclined. He hoped that his seeming want of hospitality would be forgiven. They would arrange to come out some Sunday for one of Karen's dinners.

mar the homeward trip. Terry and Caradad left the car at the entrance to the Rushmore. Their host said he was taking Mrs. Greenway home.

"Do you feel like some dinner?" Terry asked Caradad, as they entered the lobby.

"No, indeed! I'm sure I don't want anything to eat. I'd much rather have a bath and change my clothes."

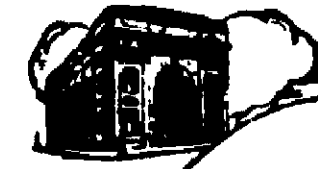

"Then I'll not bother you any more tonight. See you around noon tomorrow. Tell you, Dad—if your nerve hasn't been shaken too much, what if we take a little jaunt up the shore tomorrow and have dinner on the way. We'll stick with traffic."

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY A USED CAR

"That Sign is Good Advice. It Certainly Saved Us Plenty of Money."

AGAIN THE PUBLIC PROFITS

You know what happens when business gets caught with a BIG INVENTORY.

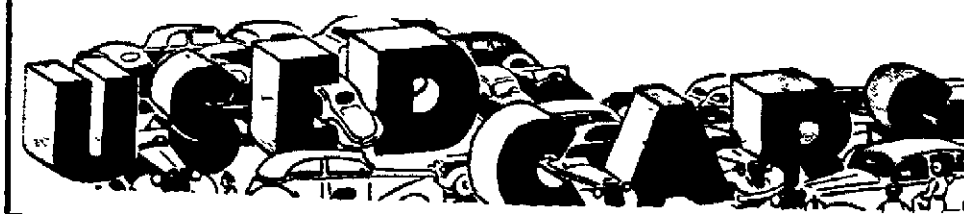

It's better to cut prices and unload; to carry over CASH, not stock.

Local used car dealers have been caught with an over - supply of used cars due to heavy trade-ins on the new '38's, a mild winter, and the curtailed number of purchasers because of unemployment, etc.

To cut the stock dealers have "CUT" the prices, and that's no ad writer's "talk." These men mean business. Probably never again will you be able to buy a car so cheap.

Probably never again will you get as good a selection!

It's Odd But It's Science.

WASHINGTON—(P)—Dr. N. H. Heck, U. S. coast and geodetic survey, wants this country to go earthquake hunting in the Rocky mountains.

The hunt, he says, would save property and lives. The Rockies are still growing. But, says Heck, there is only one seismograph per 100,000 square miles in the mountains, not enough to discover the sources of the shakes.

With enough seismographs, geologists could determine the centers where slipping rocks of the growing mountains set up the tremors. Next, they could determine the nature of the geological formations surface and buried, about these centers.

With that information, they could begin to make blue prints to save lives. They could figure the vibration periods of the quake regions. The period is the rate of vibration. In some soils it is about three a second in others one each half-second or one a second.

Putting up buildings that vibrate at a different rate, he explains, is a matter of life and death. The structure whose natural vibration period happens to be the same as that of the quake is very likely to collapse.

HITS 'EXCESSIVE' HOT MIX ROAD COSTS IN OHIO

Metzenbaum Believes Industry 'Mulets' State of Millions on Material Contracts.

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS—(P)—Questioning Clifford W. Simpson, executive secretary of the Hot Mixed Bituminous Paving Industry of Ohio, Inc., Attorney James Metzenbaum of the senate investigating committee declared today: "I think this is an iniquitous institution and a combination in restraint of trade, to mulct the people of Ohio out of millions of dollars."

Inquiring into the corporate setup and purposes of the organization, Metzenbaum obtained from Simpson a statement that there is practically no competition among members for state business. The group brought out that the attorney's trustees established a system for computing cost of road projects and he contended that they levied a 10-cent-a-ton assessment on "hot mix" sold to the state highway department. Such an assessment was not laid on material supplied to municipalities, Metzenbaum charged.

"I can't say that's exactly right," answered Simpson, who also asserted that the industry's methods were patterned on the old national recovery administration code.

Sold 343,000 Tons.

He said the organization's members sold the state 343,471 tons of "hot mix" last year.

"I would say not," he responded to Metzenbaum's inquiry if the group did not constitute a "clear-cut violation" of anti-trust statutes.

Metzenbaum read from a bulletin to members which stated that they got state jobs at a very small cut below the highway department's estimates.

"Was this an achievement?" he inquired.

"I think it was," asserted Simpson.

The secretary also said that members could not do a good job for the state if they attempted to work on exceptionally low bids.

Metzenbaum read another bulletin stating that Opha J. Ryan of Hamilton, an organization member, "hoped" to get a Works Progress Administration job. He then asked Simpson if he was aware that federal statutes forbade collusive bidding on federal jobs. Simpson said he was.

The attorney then produced another bulletin informing members that their product designated "T-35" had been adopted by the highway department and will carry other information of importance to them could not be written but would be discussed at a general meeting.

METHODIST MEN TO MEET

Methodist men of Richland county will hold a dinner meeting at 7 p. m. today in the parlors of Central Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Karl Meister of the home for the aged at Elyria will be the speaker and will talk on "What Is Your Job In The Church?" He will also show several reels of pictures.

LEGION TO HONOR WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN TOMORROW NIGHT

A patriotic sketch, with appropriate costumes and music, will be presented at the American Legion home tomorrow night when members of McVey post and its auxiliary, at a joint meeting, commemorating the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

A buffet supper will be served from 5:30 to 7 p. m. in the dining room, with the program presented in the main assembly room afterward.

The sketch, "Our Patriotic Ancestors Return," will be portrayed by men and women of the two organizations, with the Rev. Grover E. Swoyer as narrator. The sketch revolves around the return of Washington and Lincoln to discuss governmental problems with Mr. and Mrs. 1938. All of the characters will be in costume.

The characters of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln will be taken by Robert W. Stephenson and James Brownson respectively. Mrs. Eugene Flory will appear as Martha Washington, and Mrs. Mae Ruggles as the wife of Lincoln. William Kochheiser will be seen as Tad Lincoln, son of the president, while Mr. and Mrs. 1938 will be represented by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and Mrs. Margery Ludwig.

Others taking part in the sketch are Harvey Burghard and Floyd Buzard as Revolutionary soldiers; Andrew Callahan and Richard McGee as Civil war soldiers; Vernon Smith and T. M. Bell, in Spanish war uniforms, and Harry Eyerly and Russell Moore as World war soldiers.

HOWARD M. RUHL

HOWARD M. RUHL TAKEN BY DEATH

Real Estate Broker, 59, Had Been Ailing For a Year; Funeral Thursday.

Howard M. Ruhl, 59, of 174 West Second street, widely-known Mansfield real estate broker, died at his home early today. Ailing for over a year, Mr. Ruhl became seriously ill only a few days ago.

Mr. Ruhl had been engaged in the real estate business in the city for 20 years, but had been inactive during the past year because of illness.

Born in Perry township, Jan. 20, 1879, he taught school for a number of years, and prior to coming to Mansfield, conducted a general merchandising business in Darlington for 13 years.

He was a member of the Mansfield real estate board, First Christian church and a charter member of Frank Marquis lodge, F. and A. M.

Mr. Ruhl had been active in the Mansfield and state real estate associations, and served the city board as president 16 years ago. He had also served as treasurer.

He was interested in the development of many subdivisions in the city, including the South Boulevard district.

Surviving are his wife, Louise; a son, Neil, a daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Maxwell, all of Mansfield, a brother, Fred of Perry township, a sister, Mrs. Curtis Goss of Belleville, and a granddaughter, Judith Maxwell.

Mr. Ruhl's body was removed to the Wapner funeral home where services will be conducted at 11 a. m. Thursday with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger of the First Christian church officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Members of the real estate board will serve as pallbearers. They are J. R. Balliett, J. H. Mayberry, Charles Blackman, J. O. Byers, Marion Shaul and W. C. Mansfield.

SOVIET AIMS TO BUILD WORLD'S BIGGEST NAVY

Naval Commissioner Reveals Plan to Construct Best and Largest Ships.

(By Associated Press) MOSCOW—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Soviet Russia has set herself the ambitious task of outstripping all other nations in the naval armaments race.

Premier Vyacheslav Molotov has announced a program of bigger ships for a bigger navy. Peter A. Smirnov, naval commissar, went even farther, saying Russia would build not only the best, but the biggest navy.

Molotov's announcement that bigger ships would be built as soon as shipyards were equipped to turn them out tended to confirm reports abroad that Russia had been balked in efforts to order battleships abroad, including the United States, and was buying machinery to build her own battleships.

These reports spoke of possible 35,000-ton craft.

Goal Long Way Off.

Foreign experts agree that Soviet Russia still has far to go to match the navies of the great powers. Molotov indicated the U. S. S. R. was trying first to outstrip her potential enemies among the naval powers—Japan, Germany and Italy, allies in a pact against international communism.

Russia's present naval strength, like her planned strength, is a closely guarded secret. About all that has been said by Soviet authorities is the statement in "Red Star," the army newspaper, that the Soviet Union has an "excellent navy, armed with most modern guns and fighting apparatus."

The Soviet naval needs are in a way, as complex as those of almost any other country. Its fleets must be scattered in the Pacific ocean, the Black sea, the Baltic and the Arctic, with great distances separating them.

The army newspaper said all four fleets have been strengthened and enlarged, both in quantity and quality. The newspaper disclosed that coast artillery batteries have been replaced, but did not state where.

Soviet shipbuilding, thus far, has consisted mostly of submarines and light craft, including many torpedo boats.

ing sum, running up into the millions.

Immediately after the first announcement in 1913, work was begun on the Baxter building and by May the plant was able to begin operations, having moved to this city from Newark, N. J., and from the Copeland Stove company of Flint, Mich., which Westinghouse had purchased. Mansfield was selected because of its geographical and transportation advantages, the story said.

There were about 100 on the first payroll, according to company records. The first building is now incorporated in the older plant on East Fifth, which extends from the Pennsylvania railroad to Wayne street. At the time the plant opened in 1918, it had about 100,000 square feet of floor space. The immense present-day plant, now made up of eight buildings, including the new million dollar building on East Fourth street, provides more than a million square feet of floor space.

The major product was ranges the first year, although some small appliances, such as toasters and irons were made. Today the Mansfield plant manufactures 35 different products.

In the 20 years since plans were first made for Westinghouse to come to Mansfield, the plant has grown into one of the largest electrical appliance concerns in the world, and carries the name of Mansfield into every corner of the globe.

City Health Board Approves Compulsory Immunization; Eight More Taken Ill.

average number of cases reported has been four a day.

Three of the eight new cases are in city, according to Health Commissioner Roy C. Rehder, making the city's total 22.

Of the eight cases, five are adults, and three are school students.

Three members of an East Mansfield family are ill with the disease. They are Mrs. Lola Swisher, 42, her daughter, Elleen, 16, a student at Madison township high school, and Miss Roma Weaver, 19, all of the same address.

Others are Howard Remy, 19, of Possum Run road; Lucille Hildebrand, 13, Washington township; a White Hall school student; William Ballitch, 29, of 456 Grace street; Mrs. Gladys Wharton, 35, 199 Grace street; and Ruth Alexander, 16, 117 Park avenue east, a student at Madison township high school.

Last night's health board meeting was marked by a report from Dr. Rehder and Dr. Van Orsdall on the progress of the fight to curb the disease, with which 60 persons have been taken ill.

Dr. Rehder said that 99 per cent of the public school pupils in the city, more than 6,000, have been immunized. When vaccination work is completed in the county, a total of 45,000 will have been treated, he said.

Health officials were working in Worthington, Jefferson, Perry, Jackson and Sharon townships today. When they have finished there they will have completed the round of county schools.

The motion for the health board resolution calling for compulsory smallpox and diphtheria immunization came from Dr. R. R. Black, and was passed with no opposition.

OK RESTORED

Hospital's Obstetrical Ward License Renewed.

Mansfield General hospital today for the first time in nearly two years was operating its obstetrical department with the approval of the state board of health.

This was revealed last night at a meeting of the Mansfield board of health which approved the license that had been revoked because of sanitary conditions early in 1936.

The state health board had refused the license, it was learned, because of the close proximity of the obstetrical department to the surgery.

With the opening of an obstetrical department several months ago, the license was issued on the approval of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner.

The hospital's license was recalled by former Health Commissioner Dr. M. C. Hanson, when hospital authorities had failed to comply with certain health demands.

"SOCK" THAT COLD

before It Sacks You!

Don't take a cold lightly. Don't be namby-pamby in your treatment.

A cold is an extremely serious thing and may end in something grave.

Treat a cold promptly. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ) tablets are what you want for a cold!

First of all, they are a distinct cold medicine, made for colds and nothing else. "Cure-alls" may be treacherous.

Secondly, Bromo Quinine tablets are internal medication. They do an inside job, which is what you want.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Don't Dilly-Dally!

Don't procrastinate with a cold. As soon as you feel the first signs, go right to your drugist for a box of Bromo Quinine tablets.

Taken promptly, these tablets will break up a cold in 24 hours, and that's the action you want.

Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untired. They have been on the market for over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablets. That's proof of their dependability.

"Safety First!"

Bromo Quinine tablets come in 35 and 60 size. The 60 size is the better "buy." It gives you almost 20 per cent more for your money.

When a cold threatens, go right for Bromo Quinine tablets. Ask for—and insist upon getting—Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets). Substitutes are never the real thing!

WIDENING THE CIRCLE OF FORD ECONOMY

NEW FORD V-8 ONE-TONNER

EACH YEAR you get more and more value in a Ford Truck. Each year more and more owners see proof of its economy.

For 1938, the Ford Motor Company adds an entirely new truck to the line—a new One-Tonner on the 122-inch wheelbase. It widens the circle of Ford economy—offers exactly the truck you need in the one-ton range.

There's a good-looking body type for practically every need—Stake, Panel and Express.

The new Ford One-Tonner is also available as Cab and Chassis or Drive-away Chassis.

And here's something else mighty important. The new Ford One-Tonner enables you to suit the engine to the job. You can buy it with either the 85 or 60 horsepower V-8 engine. And that V-8 engine puts the Ford in a class by itself for speed and power and the ability to do more work. Its economy has been proved by hundreds of thousands of owners.

FEATURES OF THE FORD V-8 ONE-TONNER

- Choice of two V-8 engines—85 and 60 horsepower.
- 122-inch wheelbase.
- Full torque-tube and radius-rod drive.
- Full-floating rear axle.
- Tapered roller front and rear wheel bearings.
- Straddle-mounted pinion.
- Free-shackled springs.

ASKS C. OF C. TO DEBATE ON SALES TAX MOVE

Head of League Seeking Repeal of Retail Levy Answers Williams' Bulletin.

Replying to the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, which in a special bulletin announced opposition to the movement to repeal the retail sales tax, Dr. Oscar Haynes, Akron, president of the Ohio Anti-Sales Tax League, challenged Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber, to engage in a debate.

Dr. Haynes took exception to a statement in the bulletin, issued last week, which said that "business groups throughout the state are still thoroughly committed to the principle underlying the sales tax."

The bulletin charged that the statement made by the league that its repeal movement was supported by state business groups was false. Dr. Haynes disputed that statement.

"We know as everyone else does that it was through the influence of the powerful Chamber of Commerce and other lobbies that passage of the sales tax law was made possible and that they would be expected to still favor the measure," Dr. Haynes wrote Williams, asserting that the league knew "thousands" of business men not members of these groups who favor the repeal of the plan.

He then challenged the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce to arrange a debate, select a hall and its own speakers to defend the sales tax, while he argued against it.

Williams said the debate proposal would not be accepted.

"It would serve no real purpose and would only open up the whole question of taxation," he said today.

Dr. Haynes, an Akron physician who is said to be politically powerful and active among war veterans groups, also wrote to school officials in Chillicothe and Dayton, making similar debate offers.

A Farmer's Diary

Feb. 14. VALENTINE DAY. This evening, after the children were in bed and all was quiet and at rest within the house, my wife and I agreed to do something exciting. We decided to go through the woods, along the open road, by the winding stream. This is familiar ground and we like to walk the fields of memories.

We walked westward along the narrow road. Trees stood motionless on the bluffs to the east. The moon was about two hours high. We admired the graceful shapes of trunks and branches silhouetted against the sky. We knew the wild cherry by its curling bark, the pignut by its tight laced covering and fruit that hung like berries on its top. The elm stood a giant plume with its many branches. The willow had slender switches trailing along the ground.

Some of these trees we looked upon had stood for a century or more. Perhaps within their silent trunks are recorded the fierce cry of the Indian wailing wolf, the beat of savage tom-toms in Indian war dance. Here may be revealed the drought of some seasons, the abundant plenty of many others; the howling of winter winds, or the thunder of summer tempests; the sweet murmur of waterfalls, or the bewitching songs of an Indian maiden waiting for her lover.

Truly there are "tongues in trees."

OFFER BEAUTY IN COLOR, FORM FOR BATHROOMS

Modern Equipment Also Has
Efficiency and Durability;
Quality Best Choice.

Bathroom plumbing equipment has reached the stage where home owners may select pieces which not only combine the present day demand for beauty in color and form but which are all that one could desire in efficiency of operation and in durability. Years ago, as most people know, the average bathroom was as severely plain as a hospital room. Sanitary demands stipulated proper materials and sound plumbing, but beyond the element of neatness there was little thought given to making a bathroom downright attractive.

Following this phase came the pedestal tub, a few artistic touches to the lavatory, perhaps, and something special in the way of bathroom mirrors. Later tiled floors, then walls, proved popular, but it was not until recent years that color and artistic design obtained a real hold on the general home owning public.

Unfortunately, not all of the attractive bathroom plumbing fixtures embraced the perfection of operation which characterized some of the older equipment. The better grades of plumbing were as efficient as ever but plenty of impressive looking equipment proved anything but a good buy, because the first thought of the makers apparently was to catch the eye.

Drastic Revision.
The business depression and the almost complete collapse of residential construction gave manufacturers an opportunity to do some drastic revision and as a result the general run of plumbing equipment during the past two years has been much superior in every way to that obtainable four, five or six years ago. An architect's exhibit in New York visited recently by the writer illustrated quite impressively how far the manufacturers have gone in combining beauty of appearance with consistency in operation. Bath-tubs not only are made in numerous attractive colors and designs, but are equipped with fixtures which are dependable in operation of materials which are designed to endure and which conform artistically to the general decorative plan. Shower heads are so finely adjusted that they guard against sudden drains on the hot or cold water supply from other parts of a house which formerly caused a stream to go suddenly icy cold or else scaldingly hot. Now an automatic mixer takes care of such situations and keeps water temperatures at predetermined figures regardless of outside demands.

Closets which had been made more attractive a few years ago now are both attractive and silent in operation. While tanks serving them are much less involved and more consistent in operation than was true a few years ago.

MENDING HINT

If a fragment is broken from the edge of a linoleum rug, cut a piece of cloth larger than the break, cover it with glue and slip it under the break in the rug. Insert the fragment and weigh it in place until the glue dries. For ease of cleaning and attractiveness, incidentally, linoleum should be frequently lacquered, shellacked or varnished, then waxed. Never apply a new coating of any of these materials over wax. Be sure to remove all traces of the old wax with turpentine.

DIVORCE REASON

Can't Leave Wife To Pay Meal Ticket, Judge Says.

DETROIT, Mich. — (INS) — "Wine 'em, dine 'em and leave 'em is a good motto," thought Russell Serenberg.

"But not to habitually sneak out of the restaurant and leave her to pay the bill, thought Mrs. Serenberg.

Apparently the law thought as Mrs. Serenberg did, for she got her divorce.

So You're Going To Build A House— You Can Obtain A Nice Home for $6,000; U. S. Will Help Raise Cash

Writer Tells How New FHA Plan Will Help Build A Dwelling.
By SIGRID ARNE

(AP Feature Service Writer)
WASHINGTON—From coast to coast it's possible for the family that can beg, borrow, or draw from the bank $6,000, to build a whopping good six room house.

You don't need $6,000 in cash at the start. If you have 20 per cent ($1,200) for a down payment, you can borrow the rest under the Federal Housing Administration's insurance plan. And, now, that down payment may be reduced to 10 per cent.

Congress has approved changes SIGRID ARNE in the housing law to reduce fees paid to FHA for insuring mortgages. That would mean a saving of $15 a year on a $6,000 house.

He can have a one or two-story house with three bedrooms, a home considered adequate for a family with two children. It will have gas, electricity and at least one bath.

Modernism In The South.

It will vary in different sections of the country. Labor costs are higher in some sections. Contractors' prices vary. Houses in the south don't need central heating and basements. Some people can get along without a garage.

Moreover, personal preferences have to be considered. The man who's too lazy to shovel his own coal is glad to put extra money into an automatic heater, but he has to punch elsewhere in the house. Some people insist on porches, and they cost money.

For Family Of Four.
But the $6,000 home seems adequate for the average family of four. Federal housing authority architects point out that three bedrooms will provide a room for the parents and two bedrooms for the children, regarded as a necessity when they include boys and girls.

Building conditions vary so greatly that there is no universal pattern for a $6,000 house. But FHA shows what can be done by taking from its files reports on houses that have been built for that sum under its insured mortgages.

Here's one in San Diego, Calif. Six rooms with two-car garage, no cellar but it has a gas furnace, tile bath and lavatory; lot 50 by 127 feet. It costs the family $46.46 a month for everything: payment on the house, interest, taxes, insurance.

Here's one in Jackson, Miss. Two-story with six rooms, finished outside with asbestos shingles, lot 50 by 150; bath and lavatory, both tiled, oak floors; no basement but gas heaters in the rooms, rock-insulating overhead 40 by 116 feet, no garage; basement; weather-stripped, insulated overhead; one bath.

Pay your money—if you can get it—and take your choice.

CHEERFUL SPOT
Sunshine comes into a kitchen that has walls painted creamy yellow, darker yellow cupboards and cabinets, and yellow seats in the chromium metal chairs. On each square of glass in the cub-board doors a spray of fruit has been painted. The table tops are coated brown as are the knobs of the furniture. A brown and cream pattern decorates the linoleum.

WHY WINDOWS CRACK
Lack of putty on the frames of windows may cause cracked glass. Moisture absorbed by the frames during heavy rainfalls causes swelling of the wood. This in turn presses on the glass and cracks it.
